Nixon Predicts GOP Will Make Gains in House

Says Party Has 'Good Chance' to Pick Up 40 Seats

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the Republican party has a good chance to gain 30 to 40 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives in 1966.

Nixon told the Western States Republican Conference Friday night that the party also should make gains in the U.S. Senate and state governors' races.

The present makeup of the house is 293 Democrats, 141 Republicans and one vacancy. Should the Republicans pick up the number of seats predicted by Nixon, the Democrats still would control the House by a substantial margin.

Nixon said he'll campaign next year for Republican nominees who ask his help, but added: "I will not endorse. I will not appear with any candidate who is a member of the John Birch Society."

Society Under Attack

The society has been under increasing attack recently by many Republican leaders, particularly members of Congress, who have charged that the ultra-conservative organization is trying to infiltrate the GOP.

Spokesmen for the Birch Society have denied it.

The 13-state Western Conference closes today after a speech by former Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the Republican presidential nominee last year.

Earlier in a news conference, Nixon said the Republican party stands in a strong position today because it has repudiated the radical right extremist element and healed the ideological split of 1964.

On the other hand, he said, the popularity of President Johnson's Democratic administration has reached a peak and should begin to decline. The administration has made its promises and enacted its programs, Nixon said, and now must begin to pay for "higher prices and inefficiency."

Abstention By Russians On Key Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The threat of a U.S.-Soviet split on the India-Pakistan crisis cast a shadow today over a new move by the Security Council to enforce the shaky truce.

The Soviet Union broke the big power unanimity that had prevailed on the issue when it abstained Friday on a council resolution demanding that both sides stop violating the ceasefire and agree to a deadline for pulling back their troops.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko said he refrained from voting because the resolution ignored a Soviet demand for a three-month limit on keeping U.N. truce observers in India and Pakistan.

No "Big Power" Veto

Fedorenko, however, did not cast a big power veto, which would have killed the resolution. It passed 9-0 with the Soviet Union and Jordan abstaining.

Delegates expressed fear that U.N. efforts to establish a meaningful peace between India and Pakistan might be scuttled if the two big powers split over the issue.

The rare cooperation shown by the United States and the Soviet Union in working to stop the shooting war on the Indian subcontinent has been credited largely for the Security Council's success in bringing about a cease-fire.

With the threat of economic sanctions bolstering the council's demands for a truce, India and Pakistan complied.

Fedorenko blamed the "United States and others" for the break in the united front that had seen the council make unanimous decisions on the Asian crisis except for a lone Jordanian abstention on Sept. 20.

"We have drawn special attention," he told the council, "to the fact that the Security Council should set up a concrete time limit for the presence of U.N. observers, which in any event must not exceed three months."

"The necessary understanding has not been displayed," Fedorenko said. "On account of such a negative position of the United States and others, violence was done to the principle of unanimity."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg countered that the Soviet Union, not the United States, had brought up the time limit issue.

The council now faces the thorny task of trying to mediate a political settlement, delegates point out. If the United States and the Soviet Union remain at odds, they said, there would be little hope of any settlement.

Chinese Reaction Sought to Indonesia's Outlawing Reds

Move by Sukarno Indicative of Further Deteriorating Relations

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Sukarno was reported today to have asked Communist China for its reaction to outlawing the Communist party in Indonesia.

The report was the latest indication of worsening relations between the two countries since the abortive Oct. 1 coup, which the Indonesian army blames on the Peking-oriented Indonesian Communist party (PKI). Its affiliated organizations were temporarily banned by military authorities because of Communist involvement in the attempted revolt.

Thousands of Communists have been arrested and others are being purged from the government.

Communist China, through Peking radio, has strongly protested these actions and mob attacks on Chinese installations.

In Moscow, the Communist party paper Pravda said today it was concerned about the Indonesian army's crackdown against the Communists.

The sources contended they could not say what Peking's reaction was.

The report of Sukarno's consultations followed by a few hours an announcement by the People's Consultative Assembly, Indonesia's highest legislative body, that it had stripped all Communist members of their parliamentary functions. Third Deputy Premier Chaerul Saleh said, however, formal ouster of the Communists would have to be decreed by Sukarno himself.

Viet Cong May Have Abducted Air Force Men

Four American Missing One Week; Search Is Underway

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Four U.S. Air Force personnel have been abducted by the Viet Cong, a U.S. military spokesman said tonight.

The spokesman said the Americans, all noncommissioned officers, have been missing since last Sunday night and a gigantic search and rescue operation is under way to recover them.

As he explained it, the four were stopped at a roadblock between the seaport of Vung Tau and Saigon. Vung Tau is 45 miles southeast of Saigon on the South China Sea.

Their names were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Ordinary Use Plane

Small groups of Americans ordinarily make the trip between Saigon and Vung Tau, both a military center and a popular resort, by plane or helicopter.

There was no official explanation why the four were traveling by car. However, informed sources said they had been vacationing at Vung Tau and hitched a ride to Saigon because their aircraft was disabled.

These sources said one of the Americans had escaped, but there was no official confirmation.

The American reported to have escaped was quoted as saying he believed one of the other three may have been killed as he tried to shoot his way to freedom.

"No, No, No"

He was reported to have said that he heard the yell, "No, no, no!" and then gunfire.

Villagers were reported to have seen an American wandering this week near the scene of the abduction, but it was not known whether it was one of the men who was captured.

The sources said the Americans were apparently hiding in the car, driven by a Vietnamese, when the abduction took place.

The four were stationed at Tan Son Nhut airport in Saigon.

133 U. S. Aircraft Lost in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says 133 U.S. airplanes of combat type were lost in action over North Viet Nam through Oct. 31.

Six were downed by Soviet-built antiaircraft missiles and most of the others by conventional antiaircraft, the Pentagon said Friday.

American planes began bombing North Viet Nam Feb. 7. Since then, U.S. war planes have flown about 41,500 sorties over the Communist country, with 3,2 planes downed for every 1,000 sorties.

Wilson's Proposal For Referendum in Rhodesia Rejected

Smith Claims British Leader's Plan Has Closed Door on Unity

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected today British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's proposal for a vote among Rhodesia's white minority and black African majority on whether they favor independence on the basis of the 1961 constitution.

"I regret to say the impression you left with us (during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you claimed publicly to have opened," Smith said.

Reply to Letter

Wilson made his proposal in a letter to Smith on Wednesday. Smith's reply said:

"I regret to tell you that the only conclusion to be derived from your letter is that it is tantamount to, and can only be interpreted as, a rejection of the proposals (regarding a royal commission) agreed with you in Salisbury."

The reference by Smith to the closing of the door, and Friday's dramatic declaration of a countrywide state of emergency, gave rise to fresh speculation that Smith and his all-white government may be preparing the way for an early unilateral declaration of independence.

But Smith was scheduled to leave the capital during the weekend and some observers took this to mean that he did not plan to seize independence immediately.

Wilson had agreed to Smith's proposal that a royal commission decide whether all Rhodesians want independence on the basis of the existing 1961 constitution. Rhodesia's 225,000 whites control the government and wealth of this central African colony.

Britain refuses to grant independence without being satisfied with arrangements for full political voice for the colony's four million Africans.

Administration Doesn't Think So—Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is President Johnson's campaign for full employment forcing prices up?

Top administration economists don't think so — yet. But they concede it's something to worry about.

They don't deny consumer prices are rising at the fastest rate in five years — while the nation's jobless rate is being slashed.

White House and Labor Department sources maintain there is no direct connection. But some government experts contend higher prices are inevitable as unemployment declines.

Morrissey Controversy Comes to End

Requests in Letter That LBJ Withdraw Judge Nomination

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — The final curtain has been drawn on an unusual political drama involving President Johnson and the family of John F. Kennedy — the controversial nomination of Francis X. Morrissey for a federal judgeship.

Johnson, recuperating from surgery at his ranch home near here, received a letter from Morrissey Friday in which the Boston Municipal Court judge, a longtime political aide of the Kennedy family, said:

"To prevent further anguish to my family and further harassment to you and to those who have supported me so loyally, I respectfully request that my nomination to the federal bench be withdrawn."

Johnson wired back that he would scrap the nomination as requested, but added:

"Courage, Character"

"Let me say that you have in recent weeks demonstrated real courage and qualities of character. I greatly admire and of which your children can always be proud."

All this was anticlimactic in the sense that Morrissey's chief sponsor, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., last month had the nomination put in the deep freeze after running into strong opposition from the American Bar Association and such colleagues as Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

In another sense, it was the end of a politically significant episode in which the youthful Sen. Kennedy suffered a setback.

Some government economists believe the drive toward full employment will create a highly competitive labor market, bidding up wages and thus raising prices.

Others, however, say the rapid expansion in the economy can provide many more jobs at current wage levels and absorb more of the unemployed without forcing up prices.

Nevertheless, the government's own figures show consumer prices are rising this year at an annual rate of about 1.6 per cent compared with an annual rate of about 1.2 per cent the previous five years.

'Lowly Vietnamese' Grateful

Farmer Comfortable After Grenade Surgery

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Nguyen Van Chinh looked forward today to getting back to his farm after two American doctors removed a live grenade from his back.

"They endangered their lives to save mine," Chinh said of the doctors who operated on him Friday. "Why did they do this for a lowly Vietnamese farmer?"

The doctors were Maj. Gen. James W. Humphreys Jr., an Air Force chest surgeon from Richmond, Va., and Air Force Col. Daniel Campbell of Inlet Beach, Fla. British Dr. Tony Brown gave Chinh a local anesthetic.

Intravenous Food

Vietnamese doctors said the frail, 52-year-old farmer was in good condition. He was able to sit propped up in his hospital bed while being fed intravenously. He will not be permitted to eat regular food for a few days.

Chinh rested on his back Friday night for the first time since Sunday when a Viet Cong fired a 40mm grenade at him from a launcher as he stood outside his house. Chinh lives in Long An Province, about 30 miles south of Saigon.

Because he feared the highly sensitive grenade might explode, he tried not to move about. The explosive was lodged beneath his 12th rib.

Doctors reported that the incision made to remove the 6-inch long and 2-inch wide grenade was beginning to heal.

No Complications

They said they did not expect any complications during Chinh's recovery, although he had received no prior immunizations. Unlike Vietnamese soldiers, Chinh and millions of farmers receive little in the way of inoculations, including antitetanus shots, because of their isolation from medical centers.

Chinh has them now.

"I have never had so much attention in all my life," he said. But I must hurry back. The crops have to be planted."

Humphreys and Campbell removed the grenade with instruments attached to long rods extending through a hole in a 10-foot high wall of sandbags separating them from Chinh.

Judge Keller Inherits Warrant Signing Job For Outagamie County

Clarification of Supreme Court Ruling Is Expected From Madison

County Judge Gustave J. Keller has "inherited" the job of signing warrants being issued in Outagamie County—at least attorney and if he felt satisfied on a temporary basis.

Judge Keller, Outagamie County Court Branch 2, began putting his name on the bottom of the arrest warrants Wednesday after the Wisconsin Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that warrants should be issued only by a "neutral, deliberate and impartial magistrate," and that a district attorney does not qualify as such despite specific statutory authority given him for filing charges.

The ruling was made in connection with a Milwaukee paternity case.

Multiple Use Idea of State Forests Gains

County Boards See Possibilities in Program With Aids

MADISON — The multiple use concept of managing the state's county forest acreage is rapidly gaining acceptance among Wisconsin county boards, with the encouragement of state aid available for the development of recreational facilities within the county forest tracts.

The State Conservation Department has thus far granted funds for more than 40 recreational improvements on county forest lands in 15 counties. The money is available under the 1961 Outdoors Recreation Act. Commitments for such aids total more than $140,000. The projects range from picnic areas, to campgrounds and beach improvements, parking lots, boat landings, trailer parks, nature trails and others.

The county forest program was launched more than three decades ago with state assistance, as a means of rehabilitating hundreds of thousands of acres of cut-over or burned woodland that had gone tax delinquent.

Private Purpose
The original and primary purpose was the restoration of a timber crop. That remains the basic objective of the state-county partnership today. However, there is a growing realization that the county forest ownership also provides a recreation opportunity in a time of rising public demand for outdoor diversions, that can be accommodated without damage to the forest plantation idea.

A part of the new program involves the preparation of a comprehensive county forest management plans, including recreational development, for those counties interested in qualifying for the state aid grants. Fourteen plans have been filed and approved, covering county forests of Burnett, Clark, Chippewa, Florence, Forest, Iron, Langlade, Lincoln, Marinette, Oconto, Price, Rusk, Washburn and Wood counties. Seven other counties have such plans in preparation.

Tavernmen Protected by New State Law

Register System Serves as Defense Tool in Court Cases

MADISON — A new state law on proof of age of tavern customers provides a defense tool for tavern-keepers troubled about the problem of false identification cards often used by some young people.

The Tavern League of Wisconsin, advising its members of the procedures under the new statute, explained that the new law requires retailers of liquor and beer to keep a "Wisconsin Identification Register" that must be signed by every customer whose age may be doubtful.

"If there is any question about whether a customer is old enough, retailers or their employees are required to have patrons sign the register," said John J. Roher, league field director.

Slightest Doubt
"If the retailer has the slightest doubt about the age of any customer, and the customer shows documentary proof showing him to be old enough, and if during the day, Judge Keller the patron appears to be old had to break between court proceedings to confer with representatives of the district attorney's office and other law enforcement officials before signing warrants presented to him.

More Work
Judge Keller also said it would be premature to comment on the merits of the decision and the resulting factors at this time, but he agreed with Schaefer that more work is the immediate result.

Friday was busier than normal in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, and several times during the day, Judge Keller had to break between court proceedings to confer with representatives of the district attorney's office and other law enforcement officials before signing warrants presented to him.

Patron of Thessaloniki Was Roman Soldier Turned Christian

SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — Dimitrios, who was tortured and Greece has many local saints then dispatched by a "lance in but none more venerated than the side."

Dimitrios, the "sweet-smell" Believers retrieved the body of, patron saint and protector of Thessaloniki and buried it within the precincts of the prison. At once, the miracles began, and the reputation of the second half of the Third century as a healer began to spread beyond the bounds of the Roman emperor, Diocletian, not city.

Series of Cures
So well known were the stories of cures performed by Dimitrios that Leonios, prefect of Illyricum, in the year 412, traveled to Thessaloniki in search of treatment. On being cured, he commissioned the building of a basilica — the first of a series of churches of St. Dimitrios — on the site of the baths and stadium where the saint had been tortured and slain.

At once, according to legend, a fountain under the apse of the basilica began to eject perfumed healing oil which attracted many pilgrims and caused St. Dimitrios to become as "Myrrylis," the "sweet-smelling." The oil, it was said, originated from the actual sepulchre of the saint.

The attendant of the modern church of St. Dimitrios will show visitors to the dungeon where the saint was imprisoned, executed and buried. From there a corridor leads to catacombs and the original church. This crypt came to light after a fire in 1917. Excavations also uncovered a metal drain in the wall through which the sweet-smelling oil reportedly once flowed.

Conflict of Beliefs
Inevitably the moment came, in the year 303, when his Christian beliefs came into conflict with his army duties. Refusing to carry out orders of persecution, he was called before the emperor. He confessed that he was no longer believed in the Roman gods and would not renounce his faith in Christ.

He was thrown into jail, and shortly afterward put to death. The pretext was the killing of a wrestler. Laos, one of the stars of that year's games at the Salonika stadium, was a wrestler whom records describe as "massive and of immense strength." Few responded to his challenges. Thessalonikan youths were afraid that to do so meant defeat and death.

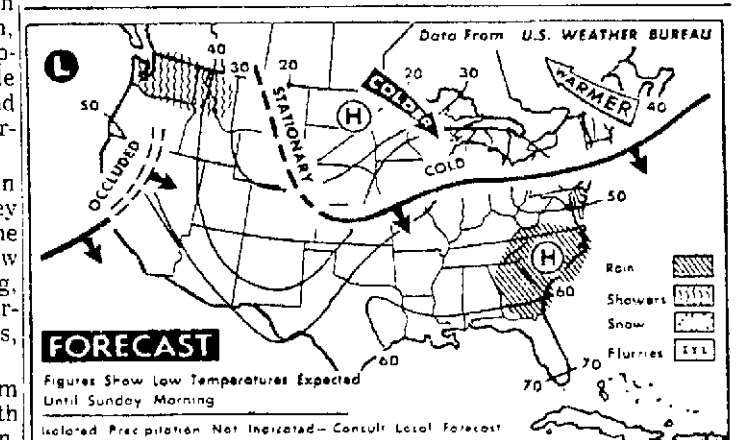

Finally, the challenge was accepted by a youth named Nestor, a Christian and a friend of Dimitrios. Resolved to face his "Goliath" in the arena, he went to the jail and consulted Dimitrios.

Encouraged Nestor
Records are unclear on what occurred at that interview but all agree that as Nestor left, Dimitrios encouraged him, making the sign of the cross on his forehead, wishing him victory, and sending him to the arena "full of faith and confidence."

Nestor wrestled Laos, defeated and killed him, to the rage of city. Fittingly, the victorious Emperor Maximilian, who was Greek army entered the city on present at the games that day. Oct. 26, least day of the warrior He ordered the immediate execution of Nestor and also of smites his enemies.

During the 13th Century, King John of the Bulgars, known as "The Intamous," laid siege to Thessaloniki. Dimitrios, it is said, "pierced his side with a spear," as he was sitting in his headquarters one day, and so his forehead, wishing him victory, and sending him to the arena "full of faith and confidence."

In 1913, after 482 years of Turkish occupation, Thessaloniki once again became a Greek city. Fittingly, the victorious Emperor Maximilian, who was Greek army entered the city on present at the games that day. Oct. 26, least day of the warrior He ordered the immediate execution of Nestor and also of smites his enemies.

First Phase of Tuberculin Skin Tests Ended in Waupaca County

WAUPACA — The first phase of the tuberculin skin testing program in the schools of Waupaca County has been completed, according to County Nurse Martha Heigl.

All students in the fourth, eighth and 11th grades were given the opportunity to receive the test and 1,140 took advantage of it, she said.

There were 1,133 negative reactors and seven positive reactors. A total of 259 students either refused the test or were absent at the time they were given.

Negative Test
The negative test usually means no evidence of tuberculosis at the present time, she said. However, the test should be repeated periodically as a safety measure.

The positive test indicates that tuberculosis germs from some source have been taken into the body at sometime. Those who react to the test should have an X-ray examination. This tuberculin test need not be repeated once you are a

Fourth Lecture Set at Xavier

Rev. John Snyder To Talk on Life in Negro Community

"A Minority of One," discussion of a Jesuit priest who found himself living as the minority race in a Negro community, will be the topic of the Rev. John Snyder, S.J., sociology instructor at Marquette University, in the fourth of the Marquette alumni - sponsored lecture series at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Xavier High School Commons.

"In an age when the problem of human relations is being seriously considered and solutions sought," the Rev. Snyder said, "especially those relations between the few on the one hand and the many on the other — a timely discussion on the problem of a man — a priest — who found himself living as a minority of one in a completely colored community should prove of great interest."

The Rev. Snyder felt that "Learning how to adapt and accommodate to the reversal of roles — the usual white majority with the colored minority — proved to be enlightening, rewarding, challenging and extremely beneficial."

The Rev. Snyder joined the Marquette faculty in September, 1961, following doctoral studies at Columbia University. He holds M.A. degrees from Gonzaga University in philosophy and St. Louis University in sociology.

He joined the Society of Jesus in 1941 after graduation from St. Thomas College, St. Paul, Minn.

Child's Three Worlds

Center Social Worker Speaks at Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA—"The three worlds of a child are the child himself, his home and the school, with the focus on the family," said Miss Elizabeth Vredenburg, staff psychiatric social worker of the Outagamie County Child Guidance Center, at the Holy Cross Home-School meeting Tuesday.

The school and home each has a part to play in the development of a child. The parents are fixed and familiar roots to the child in an ever changing world, she said.

"What children become tomorrow depends on what we give to or withhold from the child today," said Miss Vredenburg. She felt how well parents communicate with their children is important to the child's development.

Miss Vredenburg said, we should consider the child as a whole child and not judge him from a single incident. We must love the child enough to discipline him when necessary, she continued. She felt the father was important in the life of a child and he should give guidance as well as the mother. "Fathers as well as mothers should attend PTA and Home-School meetings," she said. "and after the first grade fathers should be at parent-teacher conferences when they have sons in school."

Tavern League Asks Barmaids In Appleton

Controversy About Women Bartenders 25 Years Brewing

The Outagamie County Tavern League wants the barrier against women bartenders lifted in Appleton.

Its position, in the form of a two-page letter, was passed along to the council's welfare-ordinance committee this week. Appleton for years has had a rule prohibiting the issuance of a bartender's license to a woman.

When the municipal ordinances were recodified last year, it was further stipulated that no establishment with a class B retail liquor license could hire any person under 21 years of age.

For more than a quarter of a century the controversy over repealing the no-women-bartenders policy has erupted within the council. Just last year a move to repeal the policy was voted down.

Discrimination?

However, a majority of the welfare-ordinance committee members feel the law should be erased. It's their contention the City of Appleton is discriminating against the fairer sex by not giving them licenses to tend bar.

Al Breitrack, president of the County Tavern League, said his organization took its official stand after the board of directors met with a membership committee and discussed the woman bartender ban.

The League, according to Breitrack, wants the law repealed with some restrictions.

It has suggested eliminating the mention of "female" in the ordinance.

Breitrack said the League feels any female applying for an operator's (bartender) license should be under the same rules as a male operator.

In addition, the League says the name of the establishment and operator should accompany the woman's application, with the employer signing the application and assuming equal responsibility for any violations of the statutes while she is working in the establishment.

A new section to the ordinance also was suggested by the League to allow the issuance of a temporary operator's permit in case of an emergency, thus bypassing normal application procedures.

The League also feels any dispenser of intoxicating beverages or fermented malt beverages should be required to have an operator's permit.

Appleton is one of the few remaining communities in the Fox Cities banning the issuance of a bartender's license to a woman.

New London had the same rule on the books for years but voted it out last week.

Police Question More Than 50 on Hortonville Fire

Outagamie County authorities said Friday more than 50 persons, many of them youths, have been questioned in connection with a fire late Sunday that destroyed the "Eagle's Nest," a Hortonville land mark.

Lt Jack Zuelzke, a sheriff's investigator, said he and State Fire Marshal Earl Schwabe of Green Bay have been working on the matter nearly all week in an attempt to learn if arson were involved.

The three-story building, built in 1848 by a Wolf River boat captain, Enos Drummond, was off Ledge Hill Road, south of Hortonville. The fire was discovered shortly before 9:30 a.m. Sunday and was out of control by the time Hortonville firemen arrived.

The building was being remodeled by the owner, Fred Bernegger, route 1, New London. Fire started in the third floor of the house at the west corner and spread rapidly, according to Ray Richards, acting Hortonville fire chief.

Catholicism Waiting for Word From Rome on Updating of Christian Life

BY FRANCIS X. MURPHY, C.S.S.R.
Copyright, 1965, Newsday, Inc.
ROME — As announced by Jesus Christ, the Christian religion was intended to be a startling creed. Christ Himself said he came to cast fire on the earth, and wanted it enkindled. As recorded in the Gospels, His life, death and resurrection were an extraordinary series of events whose spiritual and humane message did effect the course of civilization, and still serve as a goal and stimulus to the modern world.

In the hope of renewing the dynamic drive characteristic of the apostles and early Christians, Pope John called Vatican Council II into being. Now, as it reaches its final stage, the church and the world are anxiously awaiting signs that the council will have brought about an updating, or aggiornamento of the Christian way of life.

As the discussion and debates developed in the early days of the council, it became evident that the major portion of the bishops' attention would be centered on the nature of the church, its functions in worshipping God through the liturgy, and its manner of considering the knowledge given the church through divine revelation. Likewise up for review were the offices performed by bishops, priests and laity in fulfilling the church's claim to be the people of God.

Reunion Movement
Considerable attention was then turned to the relation of the Catholic church with other Christians and non-Christians in the hope of inaugurating a vast reunion movement that eventually would justify Christ's prayer: "That they may all be one, Father, as You are in Me, and I in You."

All this resulted in what might be called a great examination of conscience on the part of the Catholic church; an honest, down-to-earth searching of its inner motives and ways of operation.

At the same time a number of bishops and theologians realized that while this was admirable and necessary, and could bring about a renewal of Christian life within the church, it was not sufficient. For Christians live in the world, and their function, as described in the second century of common called the Letter to Diognetus, is to penetrate all rank of society, giving a spiritual tone and substance to every living thing. As the Christian apologist put it, "As the soul is to the body, so are Christians to the world."

It was this consideration that brought into being the document now labeled "The Church in the World of Today," and popularly called Schema 13. It proclaims the solidarity of the church in the world with the lot of all mankind. As the people of God, Christians share the anguish and sorrows, as well as the hopes and accomplishments, of modern man. At the same time, the church recognizes the great changes introduced into modern living by advances in science and industrialization in many parts of the globe, but sees with sorrow and alarm the suffering and degradation of a large majority of human beings who not only lack the education, liberty and shelter necessary to lead a life of dignity, but are actually on the verge of starvation.

Redemptive Act
To remedy this imbalance, the council proclaimed anew the fact that Christ's life, death and resurrection were meant as a redemptive act to effect the whole of creation. There is a bond of brotherhood between all men that comes not merely from the fact that they occupy the same earth, breathe the same air, share the same consciousness and are subject to the same cycle of birth and death, but that is also superimposed by an identical divine destiny.

Every human being is called to share the same dignity as a creation of God; and has been, endowed with the liberty of the sons of God. This he must use responsibly in guiding his own conduct and in caring for the needs of his fellow men; for in a very real sense, "Every man is his brother's keeper."

The consequences of this doctrine are far reaching. They mean that each human being has a right to equal treatment by both society and the church; and that the liberty with which he is endowed by God, gives man a dignity that must be respected by the state and upheld by ecclesiastical authority.

Every living creature has, besides, a right to have the Gospel preached to him in such fashion as to respect his freedom of conscience, but at the same time to provide him with the physical well-being and the education that will enable him to recognize and accept the teachings of Jesus Christ.

Strongly Opposed
To certify the church's adherence to these principles of human freedom, the council prepared a constitution dealing with religious liberty. While accepted by the vast majority of the prelates, this document has been strongly opposed by a group of bishops and theologians who assert that while man is endowed with free will, he is bound to use his intelligence to search for the truth concerning the existence of God. He must accept both the evidence provided by the universe around him, and by divine revelation in acknowledging his dependence on God. Besides, he is bound to obey the dictates of the one true religion that can be found in the Catholic church.

With these principles as a premise, these theologians conclude that as the Catholic church is the one true religion, all other religions or beliefs are in error. They likewise hold that the state and society have no alternative but to protect and favor the Catholic church, enabling it to attract all mankind within its fold. They concede that because of historical and political circumstances, it may be necessary to tolerate other religious beliefs and practices, but they maintain that the traditional doctrine of the Catholic church, while acknowledging a man's right to follow his conscience, has always vindicated the church's right to demand the allegiance of all right-thinking human beings.

In theory this is a defensible position; but when pursued to its logical conclusion, it has given rise to such practices as forcible conversions and the Inquisition, as well as the evils of religious wars and the aversion to religion that marked the revolutions of the 18th and 19th centuries and the atheistic rebellion of the 20th.

Conscious of its obligation to turn the tide of irreligion, particularly under the impulse of both Popes John and Paul, the council has decided to return to an earlier tradition that was never fully lost sight of, all during the church's history.

Return to Tradition
While not denying or de-emphasizing God's right to the recognition and obedience of all mankind, and while still asserting the Catholic church's position as the one true church, the majority of the council fathers have decided to put religious freedom in a different perspective. They have begun with man, and reaffirmed his dignity, and the rights with which he obviously is endowed by his creator.

They have likewise taken into consideration the condition of the times, pointing to the fact that during the first three centuries the Christian religion was preached purely on its merits, for the church was outlawed by the Roman Empire in which it was operating.

They have likewise examined the grave difficulties experienced by the church and Christians generally in the course of its dealings with Christian rulers in Christian states; and have concluded that generally speaking, it is best for the church to disengage itself from the state. As this certainly is the temper of modern man, the council feels it has a perfect right to restate the Catholic position of religious freedom. In so doing it is re-emphasizing Christ's attitude. "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's but to God, the things that are God's." It is also following the dictate of the first Pope, St. Peter, who said explicitly: "We must obey God, rather than men."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

The Rev. John Saito, Episcopal priest from Aomori, Japan, found his faith and the power to sustain it when as a high school freshman he went to an Episcopal Mission to learn conversational English. There he found more than English, for as he says, "I felt an atmosphere." It was an atmosphere he wanted to learn more about. He asked questions and after a year of studying Christianity he was baptized.

His family were Buddhist and he had been raised in Buddhist tradition, but they accepted his decision after seeing his deep conviction.

He went to Saint Paul's Episcopal University in Tokyo, then on to seminary and was ordained. As a Christian in Japan he represents only one per cent of the total population.

Mr. Saito is in the United States for a year of graduate study at the General Theological Seminary in New York. He is sponsored by the Division of Overseas Exchange Visitors of the Episcopal Church. To do this Mr. Saito had to leave his wife and four-year-old daughter in Japan. This is only one of the many obstacles he has faced to achieve his goal.

With his knowledge of the traditions of Buddhism he says, "I hope to bring about a better understanding between Christians and Buddhists in my country."

More Obscenity Bills

Attorney General Bronson La Follette has declared that in his opinion a senate bill concerning the alleged sale of obscene material to minors is unconstitutional. But this is not likely to end the matter. For some reason legislators are particularly sensitive to pressure about so-called obscene material but they have quite consistently failed to figure out a way of defining such material and still maintain freedom of speech.

The bill in question had been offered in the state senate by Senator Jerris Leonard. Another bill, offered by Assemblymen Nager, McKay and Nikolay, was just presented to the Assembly. The main differences in the two bills concern age and definitions of obscenity. The senate one would have the penalties apply to those who sell such material to minors under 18 while the assembly bill would set the age of reason or immunity at 21. The senate bill says that "obscenity is the present critical point in the compromise between candor and shame at which the community has arrived here and now." The assembly bill says that "obscene material is material which is potentially offensive and which predominately appeals to the prurient interest of the average person, applying contemporary community standards of decency." Obviously — and by precedent — these definitions are impossible to nail down. Both bills then describe "obscene" material further as anything which "exploits, is devoted to or is principally made up of descriptions of illicit sex or sexual immorality. . . or which consists of nude or partially denuded figures posed or presented in such a manner to provoke or arouse lust or passion or to exploit sex, lust or perversion or which advertises services, facilities or articles for sexual deviation. . ."

Presumably the authors of both bills are aiming at the flagrantly distasteful stuff that sometimes clogs the newsstands or may be available under the counter. But the "average person" does not really exist. The trouble is that anyone can protest just about anything published under this bill. Ads concerning homosexual treatises would be banned. There would be someone demanding prohibition of girdle and brassiere advertisements. Practically every movie magazine could be suspect. And even more serious, the blue nosed would once more haul out passages in library books available to high school — or even college — students. The fear of such harassment has already meant the curtailment of some reading material in schools.

The overemphasis upon sex in our society is certainly a problem confronting parents and even more seriously the children and adolescents of this age. But the problem must be acknowledged, discussed and accepted. No solution can be found in trying to return to a much less sophisticated era or in passing laws which would serve to harass those seriously interested in good literature.

This Fellow Needs a Friend

Despite President Sukarno's soothing efforts to halt his army's retaliation against Communist elements, the civil war in Indonesia seems to be spreading. The Communists are the ones mainly responsible for making the trouble and it may be a long time before the revolt is quelled.

The revolt has spread to both eastern and western Java from its original base in the middle. A Communist youth organization has been battling Indonesian troops and terrorists are beginning to attack homes in West Java. At least two district headquarters have been seized by Communists.

But Sukarno and his left-leaning foreign minister Subandrio have been spending their time meeting with the Chinese Communist ambassador, Yao Chang-Ming. Peking has officially protested some of the actions in Indonesia, especially searches of its embassy personnel and offices. Sukarno has been unable to halt his army officers from ordering purges of Communists and sympathizers from the military command and the rounding up and arrests of others suspected of being Red. So apparently Sukarno now must try to convince the Red Chinese ambassador that everything will settle down soon and there will be business as usual with the Reds in a few weeks.

However, while the unrest continues, it is also quite likely that bids are being made for the office of president. Reports of Sukarno's ill health continue to appear and certainly he is no longer in complete control of his country. Subandrio obviously has dreams of glory and for that he must soothe the Chinese ambassador and convince Peking that he is able to hold down retaliations against the Reds. Army aspirants to power in the meantime can be expected to use the Communist threat for all it is worth.

Indonesia has the second largest Communist Party membership in Asia. There is no telling how many followers of the Red line there are. In his decision that Red China would be the strongest and most influential power in Asia for some time to come, Sukarno has managed to increase the prestige of Indonesian Communists. But while he definitely reckoned without the opinion of high-ranking military leaders, he may also have misunderstood the mood of the Indonesian population. Even their idolatry for Sukarno seems to have been dissipated. If there are any spontaneous demonstrations going on in Indonesia, they are against the Communists.

It is unlikely that Red China would launch any kind of an offensive against Indonesia. But Sukarno's efforts to soothe the Chinese ambassador at this stage are understandable. He has alienated the United States and Great Britain, challenged Australia's ownership of West New Guinea and has no friends even in Asia except those close to the Communists.

The day may come when he'll need all the help he can get and from any source at all.

Oath Complete With Crackers and Cheese

It has never been revealed whether President Johnson is his own state production manager or whether he uses hired talent. But either way we must admit the productions are voluminous and varied even if a bit corny.

The President has turned recently to choosing appropriate sites for various official ceremonies, like signing the new immigration law at the Statue of Liberty. The latest was the swearing in of the new postmaster general, Lawrence F. O'Brien.

There were two swearing-ins that day. Wisconsin's John A. Gronouski was given his oath as the new ambassador to Poland in the living room of the Johnson ranch in Texas. This may have been an indication of the lessened stature of Mr. Gronouski, who was removed from the command of the post office to make room for Mr. O'Brien.

Or on the other hand it could be excused on the basis that Mr. Johnson was not fit enough yet to travel to a more suitable location like Pulaski, Wis.

But for Mr. O'Brien's ceremony, the Presidential party drove four miles over to the small community of Hye, population 135, where the new head of the Post Office Department took his oath on the front porch of the combined country store and post office.

The party then adjourned inside where the store's proprietor spread paper towels on the counter and laid out some crackers and cheese. The President called it "hors d'oeuvres," to emphasize the homeliness of the scene. Wisconsinites will pick out one flaw in the carefully planned sketch, however. The cheese was of the processed variety. You know, that mild rubbery stuff.

Need Road Into Calumet County

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Motor for Nov. 1, 1865.
Are our people, by supineness, or lack of energy to take immediate action in securing good roads into Calumet County, going to allow that vast trade to be diverted to another locality?

The trade we (Appleton) can have by a comparatively light outlay, and by a route that farmers much prefer to take their own teams on and travel over than to trust their lives and produce to the dangers of a trip across Lake Michigan.

A stock company is forming in Oshkosh to establish a daily ferry line across the lake. The citizens of Oshkosh have already subscribed $4,000 of the stock, and only $2,000 remains to be taken by Calumet County.

All that we need to do is to build a few miles of good road, and the Oshkosh ferry may run — but it will go empty.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 2, 1940.
Edward Sohrweide, Town of Chilton, was awarded a scholarship for the short course in agriculture at the University of Wisconsin. The honor was made because of his outstanding work in the 4-H club movement, and the Future Farmers of America Chapter at Chilton High School.

Carl Giordana, captain of the Kaukauna High School football team, was high scorer in the Northeastern Wisconsin Conference. He totaled 55 points, on seven touchdowns and 13 extra points.

Royall Streck and William Rulov were appointed co-chairmen of the Menasha High School pep rally for the annual Neenah-Menasha game the next Wednesday night. Members of the bonfire committee for the pre-game festivities included Roy DesJarlais, Waldo Friedland, Dean Younger, Leonard Kaminski and George Bendt.

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 5, 1955.
Fox Valley Lutheran High School was to complete its first football season the next day against St. Joseph freshmen at Goodland Field. Members of the school's first football squad were Daniel Otto, Roger Bratz, Dennis Bricks, Bruce Kehl, Harold Bruss, Ralph Lange, Bruce Krueger, Richard Surlflow, David Southard, Steven Roese, LaVern Holz, Carl Pagel, Wilbert Abitz, Leon Westphal, Emil Schultz, Ken Look, Warren Winter and Duane Bellin. Gerhard Kamess was coach and Duane Albrecht was the manager.

Two Outagamie County young people, Lois Breitrick, route 1, Appleton, and Fred Kaphungst, route 1, Kaukauna, were among the 34 Wisconsin youth named state 4-H club winners for 1955. Miss Breitrick was cited for her work in the field of recreation and

All in all, it's been a bad year for Red China.

As if fame at home wasn't enough, Mao Tse-Tung has sustained little but rebuffs and insults the world around. From Moscow and Africa, from India and the West, the news has all been bad.

For a time, the chain Mao was trying to forge around Asia seemed to grow stronger with each month. From Peking it ran west through Tibet to Pakistan, down through Indonesia and up to North Korea, encircling the world's heaviest mass of miserable peoples.

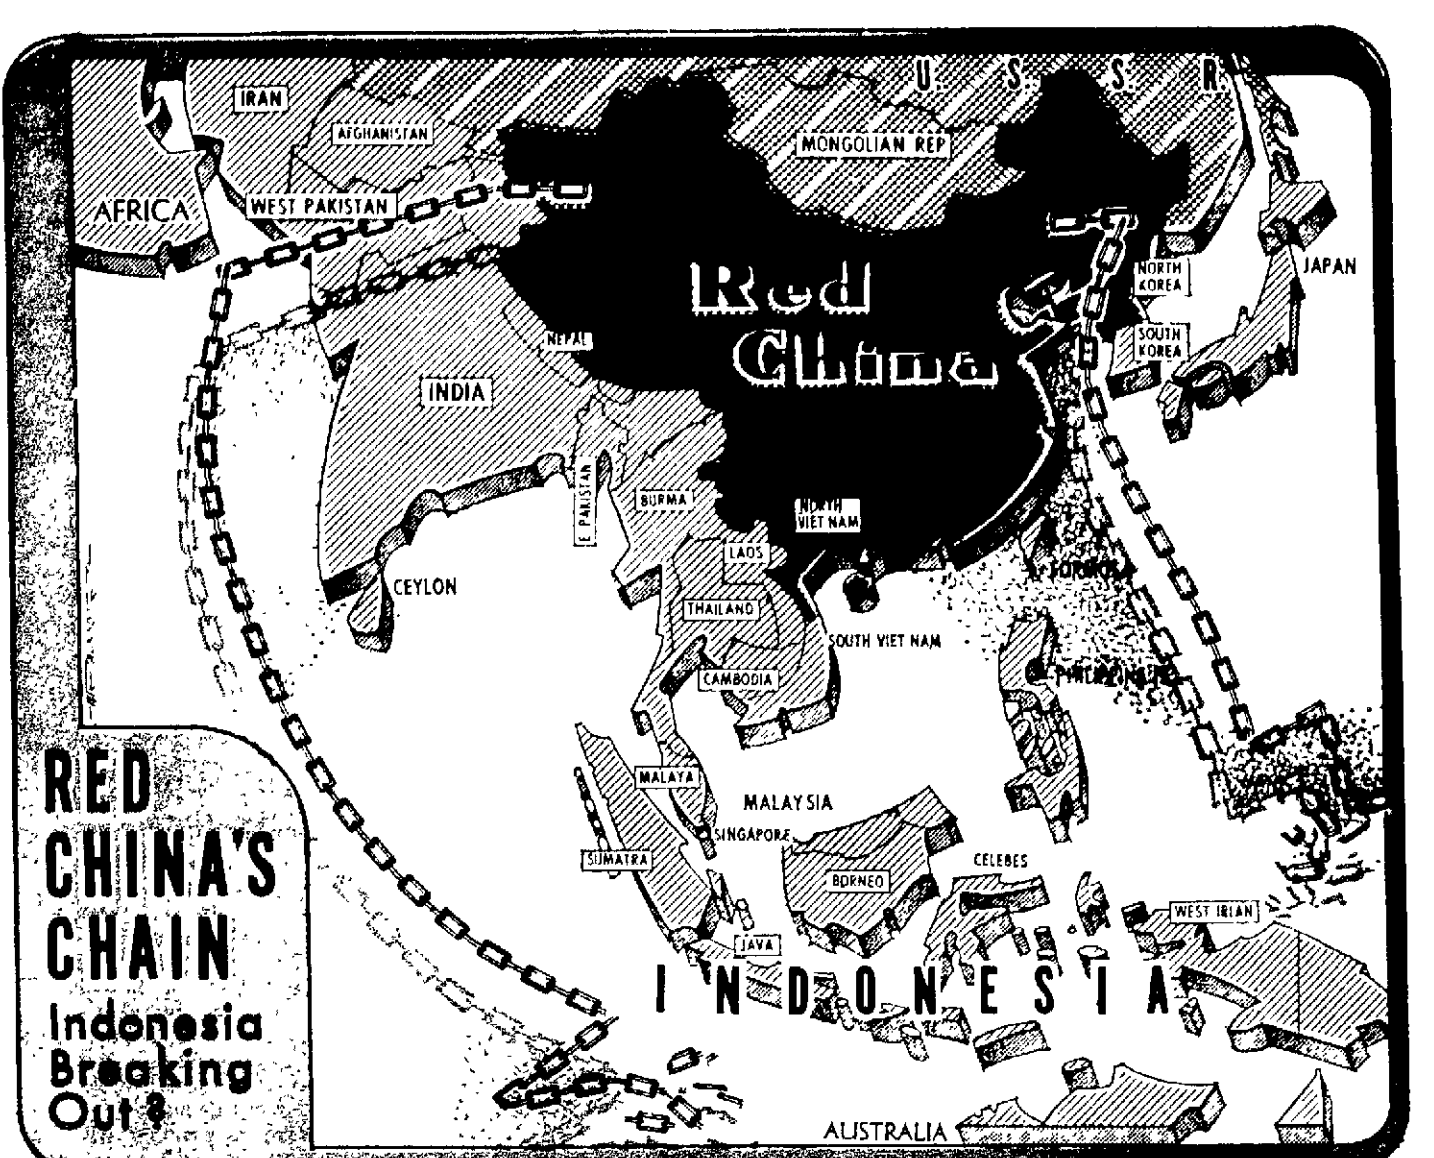

On paper, they seemed to have a lot in common, but as the chain was drawn up, weak links began to appear. Red China's strength could not match its propaganda.

When the United States called the Red bluff in Viet Nam, there was nothing but more bombast from Peking. When Pakistan and India went to war, Mao thundered and then backed down. And at last came Indonesia.

Indonesia, the world's largest archipelago, was Mao's stoutest friend. Or, to put it more precisely, President Sukarno was Mao's stoutest friend. And since Indonesia became a nation in 194, Sukarno WAS Indonesia.

For 16 years the nation of 3,000 islands and 100 million people did what Sukarno decreed. Part dictator, Part statesman, part playboy, part charmer, Sukarno seemed to have everything going his way. He played the United States off against Russia, extracting vast sums of money and aid from each, all the while moving closer to Red China.

Sukarno sought to rally the have-not nations against the haves, and then he went too far. He withdrew Indonesia from the United Nations, the first nation ever to quit the world body, and the effects are still mounting. This move shocked the emerging nations of Africa and Asia. Coupled with Red China's meddling in African politics, the balance began to turn.

Indonesia is rich in natural resources, diverse in nationalities and interests. As the nation's economic troubles mounted, Sukarno was pressed the attentions of his people from their troubles. His latest diversion was the "crush Malaysia" campaign, in which he began to wage undeclared war against the Federation of Malaysia.

When Singapore, despite its overwhelmingly Chinese population, did not join the Red China-Indonesia axis. And at home, Sukarno's troubles mounted.

On Oct. 1, the pot boiled over. The Indonesian Army rose to crush a Communist plot to take over the country. Was Sukarno slipping? The gay charmer tried to put a bright face on it but he is 64 and, say the rumors, not very well. The last act is far from Played out in Indonesia but at the moment the army seems firmly in command. And after Sukarno, who? The Communist party is the nation's largest, certainly the most vociferous. But 90 per cent of the nation is Moslem, with the typical Moslem antipathy for communism. The world will watch the outcome of the struggle in Indonesia.

For the moment, Red China's chain has snapped, at what had appeared to be its strongest link.

Public Employee Interests Came Out Handsomely in Legislative Session

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — Largely unnoticed because of the emphasis upon the episodic drama of the legislative process is the steadily increasing influence of the public employee interest in the making of legislative policy.

In no legislative session during the last decade and a half at least, have the various elements of the powerful combination of public employee lobbying been quite as successful as during the 1965 legislature to date. While not all of the high priority proposals of the employee groups have yet won the approval of both chambers, there is very little doubt that they will reach the statute books before the session finally ends, perhaps in the spring.

It is no discredit to the legislative process to observe, moreover, that it is the power of the advocacy, rather than an understanding of the details of the measures offered, that is responsible for legislative enactment in many instances. As one example, there was perhaps no act of the legislature this year that was so little understood by the individual legislator as the upward revision of the benefit provisions of the Wisconsin Retirement Fund several months ago.

That those benefits were considerable and costly is perhaps indicated best by the fact that a later proposal before the legislature asked that local units of government be authorized to pay for the additional prior service credit obligations on an installment basis. In many instances, apparently, the higher cost liability would have been difficult to finance otherwise. The same story is involved in the more recent upward revision of the benefits under the teachers retirement system. Only a handful of legislators directly involved could give a reasonably adequate explanation of what was done.

All this is not said critically. Kaphingst for outstanding achievement in 4-H club work.

Mrs. Robert Kelleit was chairman of the Neenah Homemakers Club's food sale. Her assistants were Mrs. Frank Raddu, Mrs. Arthur Strong, Mrs. Victor Charrier and Mrs. Clifford Dahl.

One of the reasons why the public reports on such important developments were so sparse is the fact that the press galleries were no better informed than the men who were pushing the roll call buttons. So complex and difficult are these matters that the legislature has turned the business over to special committees. What those committees report, and what the public employee groups support, is what is enacted into law, although some reflective lawmakers must wonder about the default of their own responsibilities implicit in the process.

OTHERS

The soft selling of the public employee groups is illustrated simultaneously in the gradual enlargement of the scope of unions in government in Wisconsin. Several years ago the local government employee unions were authorized to bargain collectively for their members. Something of the same order is now evolving in the state service, with a bill already approved by the Assembly that would authorize such bargaining with state department heads.

A companion bill with far-reaching implications would set up a "negotiation" method for state employees and a special committee of state officials as agents for the legislature which heretofore has handled wage and salary issues without such an intermediary.

But perhaps the most suggestive development, with respect to the changing employee-management relationship in Wisconsin government, is the Assembly-approved measure to authorize a so-called "agency shop" in local government employment. Presumably it will be endorsed by the Senate also. It would require, if an agreement to that effect is made by employees and the local government unit, the payment of union dues by those employees who do not for any reason chose to join the union outright. The measure was inspired by the common resentment of some union members toward their non-union associates who accept gains won by the unions without contributing to the organizations. But there may very well be some persons who wonder about the conflict between such compulsion and the civil service ideal that merit alone should determine a public employees eligibility.

MacDonald Not Candidate For Mayor Next Spring

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Ever since I took office there have been constant rumors that my intention was to run for the office of mayor in the spring election.

These rumors have, for the most part, come from well-meaning friends. Others who have given momentum to this rumor, I must assume, were simply people who are in favor of a change and apparently considered me as a possible means toward that objective.

Opponents of my efforts to make improvements where needed have used this rumor as a tool to focus attention everywhere except where it was intended.

Those officials who can not stand to be challenged have chosen to indicate that my purpose has been personal publicity, with the mayor's office in mind.

I have not issued a statement denying my intentions with regard to the mayors' office because I felt that this would be presumptuous on my part. However, I feel the time has come for me to set the record straight. I shall not be a candidate for the mayors' office.

There are several important issues either facing the council or that will soon face the council that must be acted on objectively, therefore, I feel it necessary to express a clarification of my intentions.

I want these matters and my position pertaining to them to be totally free from the political smoke screening that is going on. When I take a stand it will be, as in the past, based on my judgement and nothing else.

Rabbit Hunter and Dog Are Equally Frustrated

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I have spent two frustrating weekends of hunting due to the idiotic law of opening pheasant season two weeks before rabbit season. Upon checking with other hunters who hunt pheasants with a beagle hound I find I am not alone in my thinking. The problem of getting a good beagle off of a rabbit track has only four solutions.

American Education Week Observed November 7-13

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The observance of "American Education Week" has been scheduled for November 7-13. The theme this year is "Invest in Learning." Each year since 1921 The American Legion and Auxiliary, The National Education Association, The United States Office of Education and in recent years, The National Congress of Parents and Teachers, have sponsored this event. The fundamental objective of "American Education Week" is to acquaint the parents and all citizens with the achievements, aims and needs of all schools. This is a good time for every citizen to take a close look at our schools and our local education program and for each student to be reminded of the importance of this learning efforts.

The American Legion and Auxiliary recognizes the importance of educating all our young citizens and only in doing so will be able to strengthen and preserve our free nation.

"Need a Lift" is one of the services offered the young people of our nation by The American Legion and Auxiliary. This handbook was developed to emphasize the opportunities available to children of deceased and disabled veterans. Our goal is to interest and assist all students to further their education as far as their capabilities will allow. Copies of "Need a Lift," "Stop We May Have a Scholarship For You," and "A Guide for Parents and Students" have been made available to all high schools in Appleton.

As conscientious citizens "Invest in Learning" and in doing so, we will recognize that education pays great dividends in better human relations, improved earning power, personal fulfillment, good citizenship, economic growth, better communities and in internal relations.

New Fire Engine Too Late to Save Old Jail

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The first test for the new fire engine at nearby Lafayette was on official business, so to speak.

The fire was in a 60-year-old frame building once used as the town jail. The building was abandoned several years ago and the town didn't even carry insurance on it.

TV Sensitive to Public Opinion, Says Jingo

Suggests More Audience Letters; Sees Present Rating System as Major Fault

BY JINGO

This is the last of a six-part series on "The State of Television." After looking at the various aspects of the industry, the question now stands, "What Should be Done?"

Before looking at what should be done, it must be emphasized that the TV industry is neither black nor white; it is gray. There are good aspects and weaknesses. It is important that the strong points be expanded and the rough spots be smoothed over or eliminated if television is ever to live up to its cultural potential.

Jingo could literally fill a book with suggestions to the industry on how to improve its medium. Certainly the space available here forbids any such attempt. More realistically, the best thing to be done is to have viewers voice opinions.

If one takes the time to write a letter telling local channels what impresses favorably and what offends, there is a much better chance of something being done than to have a lone columnist air his gripes. Many persons must write letters, however, before action will be taken.

Will be Heeded

Too many viewers have the opinion, "Why should I bother to write a letter? It will only be thrown in the waste basket."

This is not true. Television is a sensitive medium, as are other forms of communication, including newspapers. The writing of a letter is often great and when many pieces of correspondence come, executives start re-evaluating what they are offering.

Public Demand
Television policy makers are not deliberately trying to present weak scheduling. They are simply offering what the viewers want. The Nielsen ratings, which public seems to want as Ghostly, Phil Ledds and Bruce determined by those prudent ones.

Jingo feels that TV ratings are one of the major roadblocks to good programming. Even the highly-touted Nielsen ratings only take a cross-section of 1,000 homes and from this sampling claim an accurate evaluation of what over 80 million Americans want.

All the ratings can do is list glimpses of what happens during a handful of people are watching at a given time and the Los Angeles Rams, Coaches, this does not indicate what they want, only what they are seen in candid settle for. That is why Jingo suggests writing letters, as often as the situation warrants in the viewer's opinion.

Carries Weight

It could logically be argued that even several thousand persons writing letters would be no more accurate than having a like number of viewers whose sets have been "bugged" determine the TV diet of millions. But look at it this way: if someone takes the time to sit down and write a letter, that person must certainly be concerned. And that will carry too much. However, there are some giggles as Barbara Eden Television is not a lost cause; tries to become a modern

Aldermen Praise Menasha Upswing

Seven Man Action Group Headed by Mowry Smith

MENASHA — The city's especially in the field of child aldermen who listened attentive-ly and applauded Thursday. Menasha has been a "stalemate" remained impressed Friday with the potential for revitalizing downtown Menasha as seen through the eyes of a "Blue Ribbon Committee" of community leaders.

A broad concept for shaping the city's future was presented to the council by a seven-man "action committee," which calls itself the Wednesday noon group and is under the chairmanship of Mowry Smith Jr., president of Menasha Corp.

"It's a shot in the arm," said Ald. Walter Remmel. All of the councilmen available for comment yesterday stated flatly that some kind of action program is necessary to get Menasha moving. They welcomed the committee's efforts for the city.

The group, which has been working anonymously for four months to refurbish downtown stores, told the aldermen "more impetus" is needed in the city's growth.

The group is now working to establish community-wide leadership for the redevelopment effort. The second step would be to draw up a master plan for downtown development. The final step would be to implement it.

Remmel said what made him enthusiastic was the approach the committee is taking — to draw in representatives from all segments of the community.

"A real good thing for the city," Ald. Andrew De Leeuw commented. He explained he thought the "springboard" for development of the downtown core is bringing in a hardware store. Now, he said, only a very limited selection of goods is available in Menasha, causing retail dollars to be spent in neighboring cities.

"Once it starts going, it could snowball," he said. But the structure of the revitalization effort must be given careful consideration, especially on the budgetary arrangements, he said.

Ald. Edward Krablean also stressed the lack of complete shopping facilities in Menasha, served from 5 until 8 p.m.

Main Work To Impede Traffic Flow

NEENAH — Repairing of gas mains in the downtown area will necessitate partially closing an intersection two consecutive Sundays.

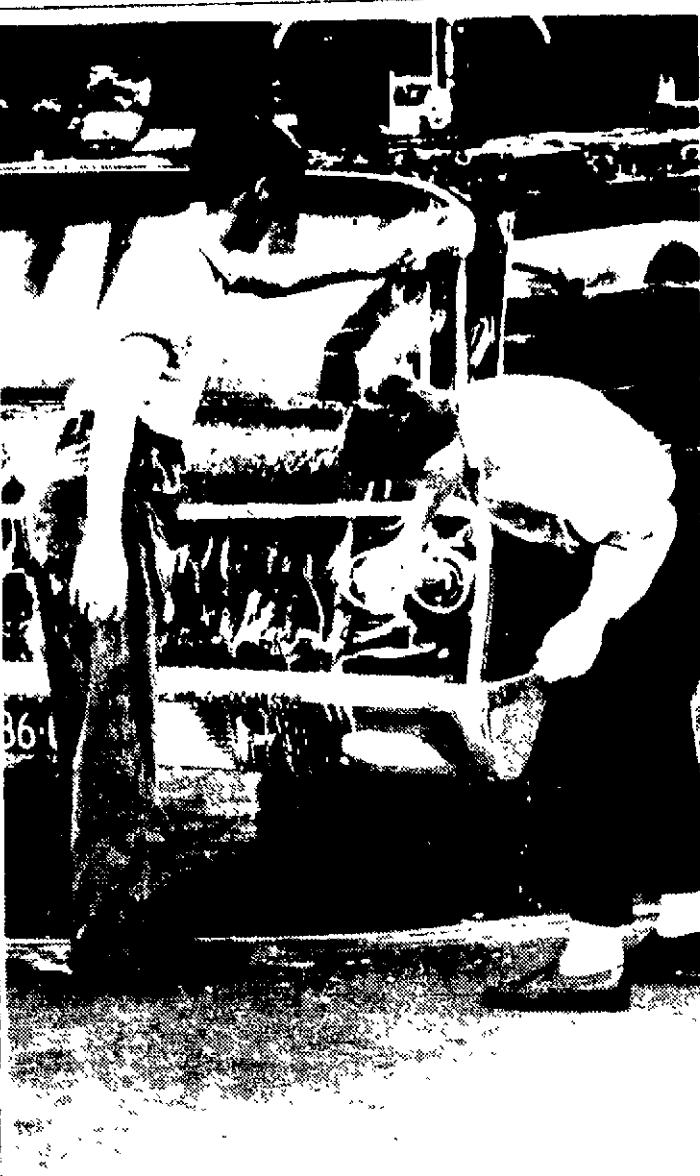

Sgt. Ray Tuchscherer said the intersection of Wisconsin Avenue and Commercial Street will be partially blocked Sunday and again the following Sunday.

The Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. will be repairing gas mains in the intersection, and men and equipment will be working in the roadway.

The police department asks caution be used in approaching the intersection as several lanes of traffic will be obstructed. Vehicles will be channeled into the proper lanes by markers, police said.

Student Advisor Will Visit With Brigade Boys

Robert E. Powless Of UW Center to Discuss Education

NEENAH — The advisor to students, University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center, will discuss education and jobs with the 10th grade members of the boys' Brigade Tuesday evening.

Robert E. Powless will discuss requirements for college and financial aid available. He will recommend the preferred high school courses necessary for entrance in any college.

Parents of the Brigaders are invited for a question and answer session to be conducted at the end of the lecture, Ray Smith, Brigade captain, said.

Monday evening the sixth graders will discuss a unit on the American flag, how it is displayed, accepted rituals and procedures as well as respect and proper method of folding and storing will be discussed.

The ninth graders will start a two-week unit on wrestling Tuesday evening. The class will be conducted by Gil Sutherland, Neenah High School wrestling coach.

Etiquette, what it is, good grooming and the niceties of society will be the unit discussed by the eighth graders Wednesday evening. The lecture also will cover good sportsmanship.

The seventh graders will continue their hunter safety program with a movie entitled "Trigger Happy Harry." The Brigaders will also fire the .22 Caliber rifles on the indoor range. The class is being conducted by qualified instructors of the National Rifle Association.

Fund Raiser Brigade Begins Annual Sale of Yule Wreaths

NEENAH — The Boys' Brigade annual Christmas wreath sale had its official kick off this week.

Brigade members sell wreaths in the Twin Cities each year in an effort to raise money to purchase equipment for the organization.

Boys, preferably in Brigade sweaters, will be knocking on doors in both Neenah and Menasha taking orders for the 21-inch in diameter wreaths. Purchase price will be $2, and the wreaths will be delivered to the buyers around Dec. 1, according to Jack Casper, Brigade coordinator. He said the boys have been instructed not to take money for the wreaths until it has been delivered.

When a family agrees to purchase a wreath, the Brigader will leave a wreath sticker to be placed in the window so other Brigaders will know the home has been contacted, Casper said.

Wreath funds help him earn money for summer encampments and purchasing Brigade sweaters and personal equipment used in the activities of the organization, the coordinator said.

Past sales have made it possible to purchase camping equipment, sports gear, movie projector, firearms and equipment for the rifle and pistol club.

Brigader Wins Radio for Naming Paper

NEENAH — Music is much sweeter for Greg Bretthauer on a new transistor radio after submitting the winning entry for naming the official newspaper for the Boys' Brigade.

Greg was one of 40 Brigade members submitting the name, "The Brigader", which was officially adopted after being judged by the board of directors. The final decision as to the winner was made on neatness of copy.

More than 400 entries were submitted, according to Jack Casper, Brigade coordinator.

The reorganized journalism club will be directed by Dave McKellips. The date for the first issue of the publication hasn't been released. The paper will be printed offset and published monthly. Plans are to publish every two weeks after the club is more firmly entrenched, Casper said.

New Head of Civil Defense Announced

Maj. H. J. Rathbun, Appleton, to Replace Lee Penny in Post

Maj. Howard J. Rathbun, 49, adviser at the Armed Forces Reserve Center, Appleton, has been named Appleton-Outagamie County Civil Defense Director, replacing Lee E. Penny who resigned the post to enter private business.

The selection of Rathbun, a three-year resident of Appleton, was made Friday following a meeting Thursday evening of the joint city-county civil defense committee.

Although the appointment has been made, it still is subject to approval of the city council and the county board. City council approval is expected at its next meeting, while the county board is expected to act on the appointment during its November meeting next week.

Rathbun probably will assume the post officially about mid-December, since his retirement from the Army is not effective until Nov. 30, according to Alvin E. Woehler, Outagamie County executive secretary.

Subject to Call

Woehler said that Penny now is subject to call as civil defense head in the county.

Six persons had applied for the post of civil defense director, Woehler said, and at Thursday night's meeting, the field was narrowed to three.

Rathbun, a Milwaukee native, has been in the armed services for 22 years. He was an executive officer in the Second Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery Division, in Germany before coming to Appleton.

Rathbun and his family, including a wife and one daughter, live at 48 S. Meadow Drive.

Motorists Nets Fines, Jail for Police Chase

An attempt to elude a policeman netted a young Appleton motorist a $50 fine and 15 days in jail when he appeared Friday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

In addition, Jared P. Birch, 17, 816 E. South St., was fined another $50 and costs and had his driver's license suspended for 15 days on his plea of guilty to speeding 68 miles an hour in a 45 zone. He was ordered to serve an additional 24 days in jail for each $50 fine that is not paid.

Birch was arrested by Outagamie County traffic police about 9 p.m. Thursday on State 96, in the Town of Vandenberg.

Police Seek Four Youths Who Stole, Damaged Auto

Authorities today are seeking four youths who stole a car late Friday and a short time later slammed the car into a tree at W. Eighth and S. Mason Streets.

The accident occurred before the theft was reported. Appleton police were called to the Mason Street location at 11:35 p.m. when they received a report that a car traveled on the wrong side of the street, ran through an arterial and jumped a curb before striking a tree.

Several girls at the scene told police that four youths leaped from the car right after the accident.

A short time after the accident, John A. Mueller, 329 S. Benoit St., reported the theft of his 1965 model car from in front of his home.

The front end of the vehicle was extensively damaged in the accident, police said.

Federal Grants Increased for Park Purchase, Development

Modification in Law Calls for Program on Urban Area Basis

Cities, towns and villages in the Fox Valley planning region may be eligible for more federal aid than originally anticipated for park and recreation acquisition and development.

The disclosure was made today by Eugene Franchetti, executive director of the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission, who said changes in the government's open space-land program were recently called to his attention.

Franchetti plans to go to Chicago soon to confer with federal officials in charge of implementing the program for the Midwest region.

Among the major changes were raising the amount of federal grants from 20 and 30 per cent to 50 per cent for park acquisition and development costs, and extensively modifying planning requirements.

In the new act, Franchetti said, planning must be done on an "urban area" basis. This will make it necessary for the regional commission to:

—Make a study and pinpoint locations and types of open space land best suited for park and recreational needs.

—Compile a list of land to be acquired and developed over a five to 10-year period.

—Estimate Needed —Prepare estimates of acquisition and development costs, along with listing priorities and recommending financing arrangements.

—List procedures public agencies within the region will have to follow to assure cooperative action on any urban program undertaken.

In letters to Mayor Clarence Mitchell, Walter Rasmussen, planner, William Wachtendonk, Appleton Park Board president, the regional planner asked that a recent park study authorized by the city council be held in abeyance.

Franchetti said the regional planning commission will be undertaking a park and recreation study of the entire Fox Valley region in order to make all municipalities in the area eligible for the 50 per cent federal aid.

State Asks Fixed U. S. 41 Bridge

Additional 2 Lanes Planned at Lake Butte des Morts Crossing

OSHKOSH — The four-laning mean water elevation of 746.2 of the U.S. 41 bridge over Lake Butte des Morts has moved a step closer to reality.

Assemblyman William A. Steiger, Oshkosh Republican, announced today the State Highway Commission has filed an application with the Corps of Engineers for approval of a fixed highway bridge over Lake Butte des Morts for southbound traffic on U.S. 41.

The State Highway Commission has also asked permission to remodel the existing movable structure to provide a fixed structure similar to the one on the southbound lanes.

30-Foot Clearance The proposed vertical clearance for a fixed bridge above the U.S. 41 bridge over Lake Butte des Morts is 30 feet which provides a clearance above high water of 25.6 feet.

It is also proposed that the state construct two new three-span supplemental bridges to provide the same vertical clearance as those presently in place.

W. J. Burmeister, state highway engineer, advised Assemblyman Steiger of the Commission's application and urged support in establishing the proposed vertical clearances in order that the state might secure early approval to proceed with construction of "this much needed facility across Lake Butte des Morts to serve U.S. 41 traffic."

Schedule Hearing The Oshkosh Assemblyman has written Col. John C. Mattina of the U.S. Army Engineer District of the Corp of Engineers at Chicago urging a prompt scheduling of the hearing on the bridge clearance "because of the critical importance of his facility."

Steiger indicated the State Highway Commission's application for the fixed bridge over Lake Butte des Morts was made on Oct. 28.

Leon Morrissey, Winnebago County Highway Commissioner, said today the clearance of the present lift bridge over Lake Butte des Morts is 15 feet above high water.

No Opening By using a fixed bridge there would be no opening of the bridge for boats so that traffic on the four-lane highway would not be stopped and backed up for several miles as it has been frequently in the past.

After the new southbound lane bridge is complete, plans are for removing the present lift bridge and raising the highway to permit a fixed bridge in place of the lift bridge.

The present lift bridge may be usable at some other location, according to State Highway personnel.

The Howe girl was taken to the hospital in Larry's Ambulance. Authorities, who said they are investigating the matter, learned the girl will be confined to the hospital for a few days. She was in shock when she first reached the hospital, they said.

Board by Board, Nail by Nail The concrete foundation will be pushed in and the hole filled. Waller said he has saved most of the material, he said, but has for himself one day last fall given up some stairs, a window and a door to a relative of the original builder, a man who grew up in the home and now lives in Neenah.

"He wanted them for memorabilia, and has put them in his own home," Waller said. The project has been a disappointment in one way.

"The wood is good," Waller said, "better than what you can buy now." He estimates, "I found a metal piggy bank he has saved about $700 in between the ceiling and upstairs lumber bills for his new home floor," he said, "but it was by dismantling the old one."

Flooring Remains The Appleton man who has worked as a carpenter for 28 years, said he took the building two and one half weeks full-time apart board by board, then took on the project. However, he has not worked constantly at dismantling the house.

On rainy days, at the start of the project, he worked inside, giving them away, he said, to the taking out partitions and plumbing. Later, in the fall when the weather became good, he started on the roof and siding.

Appleton Department Heads Told Its Folly to Ignore Existing Funds; Change in Implementation Cited

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Rep. John Byrnes (R-Green Bay, a frequent critic of the Johnson Administration's spending habits, indicated in Appleton Friday that cities should not be reluctant to seek federal aid for high priority projects.

A longtime foe of government giveaway programs, the veteran Republican lawmaker made it clear, however, he still opposed government spending "just for spending's sake."

Byrnes was sounded out by Mayor Clarence Mitchell and a group at City of Appleton department heads during an informal meeting at the Conway Hotel.

Mitchell arranged the meeting with Byrnes to give city officials an opportunity to discuss recent federal legislation which may be helpful to cities, towns and villages in the region.

Shouldn't Ignore Aids "It's no use burying heads in the sand and ignoring that federal aids do exist," Byrnes commented.

He said considerable pressure has been brought to bear on the Congress to approve more federal programs than ever before.

Byrnes admitted while he and others still feel strongly there should be less federal money and intervention in local government, the present situation had to be recognized as a matter of practicality.

"There has been a major shift in the handling of federal aids," Byrnes said.

Change in Procedure He recalled that in the past, most federal programs were through a state agency but said this was no longer the case.

"You now find the federal programs tying in directly to local government and even some non-governmental units," Byrnes said.

"The federal government through its aid programs is injecting itself into and is becoming a part of local problems," he added.

While Byrnes claimed there was overlapping between federal agencies administering aid programs, he did not think that government assistance to municipalities was all bad.

He urged local governmental officials to pinpoint municipal programs which may be entitled to some federal participation and then proceed to contact the proper agencies. Byrnes said he wanted to be kept apprised of such contacts and gave assurance his office would extend help.

"In many cases I opposed legislation that called for more federal aid and intervention in state and local governmental operations," Byrnes said. "And at times I thought the congress was going nuts on the subject."

But Byrnes said it would be impractical to close eyes and not recognize that the federal programs have been enacted.

"If the federal government is providing grants in areas that correspond to those municipal programs with high priority, then you should take advantage of the aids," Byrnes advised.

Folly to Pay Twice He said it would be folly for a community to be paying double by not obtaining grants when necessary and available. Byrnes said everyone was paying for the federal programs that have been enacted and it wouldn't hurt to recover some of that tax money.

Byrnes said communities en-

He indicated some staff changes would be needed in his office to concentrate on the many programs now sponsored by the federal government which may be of help to cities, towns and villages in the district.

City officials told the congressman Appleton was considering major projects, including a proposed $32 million six-year capital improvement program, and hoped to land some federal money.

It is known the federal government participates in water expansion projects, such as the proposed Lake Winnebago pipeline, and urban renewal. A $1 million renewal project has been recommended for downtown Appleton for 1968.

Paper Firm, Union Will Meet Tuesday For Negotiations COMBINED LOCKS — Labor and management negotiators will meet here Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. to resume 1965 contract talks in hopes of settling the strike at Combined Locks Paper Co.

Tuesday's session was scheduled by Phillip Simon, Green Bay, the federal mediator who sat in on previous contract talks before the walkout.

Locals 264 and 141, representing an estimated 350 hourly paid employees, went on strike when agreement could not be reached with the company on wages, fringe benefits and working conditions.

Mickey Wright Will Re-Join Tour in March

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — The $10,000 Tall City Open starts today without an outstanding favorite but with the promise of a fight among at least a half-dozen players.

Thirty-one pros from the tour and one amateur, Kathy Ahern of Dallas, the Texas champion, moved out in the opening round of the 54-hole tournament that winds up Sunday.

The 1964 champion, Mickey Wright of Dallas, was a spectator only but she chose a pro-amateur Thursday to make an important announcement — she is returning to the women's tour.

Miss Wright retired last summer after setting all the records for winning and scoring in women's golf.

Miss Wright said she was withdrawing from Southern Methodist University, where she has been a student this fall, and would join the tour in March. "But I'll play only about 20 tournaments. No more of this week-by-week business for me."

The action leaves Baltimore's National Football League roster one player short, and the spot is expected to be filled prior to Sunday's game in Chicago against the Bears.

Cards' Triplett Happy Over 'Best Game Ever'

By MIKE RECHT
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Halfback Bill Triplett of the St. Louis Cardinals knew something was up last week.

After sitting out the 1964 National Football League season with a tubercular lung condition and then giving disappointing performances in the Cardinals' exhibition and early season games, he sensed something was coming.

"I found out last Wednesday," he said, "that I wouldn't start the New York game. I was a little dejected."

Triplett raced onto the field in practice last week and he said he was "happy over the best game ever." Although the Cardinals were no 11-10, Triplett galloped through and around the Giants for 176 yards, the second highest yardage in Cardinals history.

"I think running behind Gault in practice last week made him start relaxed me and I didn't up," Coach Wally Lemm said last night to get too anxious.

Halfback Tom Werner and guard Ron Buelow were named "co-most valuable players" of the 1965 Clintonville High School football team by members recently.

Co-captains for the 1966 season were also elected. They are Jerron Dieck and Roy Hedike. Mike Pasch was chosen as the most improved player of '65.

According to team statistician Chuck Goetsch, quarterback Tom Richardson led the Truckers in scoring with 36 points. Clintonville posted a 5-1-2 overall mark on the way to second place in the Mid-Eastern Conference.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dis-carded a year ago by Pittsburgh, Preston Carpenter has won a new job as clutch pass receiver for the Washington Redskins.

Early in the fourth period, Carpenter snared two crucial third down passes for first downs that set up touchdowns. Then, in the final six minutes, as quarterback Sonny Jurgensen had the Washington offense moving downfield and eating up the remaining time, Carpenter caught two of the last five passes thrown, both for important first downs.
